of ideas for just about any kind of vacation. This book is great for highlighting some of the world's great events like the Dakar Rally, Incwala, Ganesh Chaturhi, Housen Matsuri, Great Singing at Mt. Hagen or the the Mangum Rattlesnake Rally, or maybe the Testicle Festival. Curious yet? This book gives a clear explanation of what to do and see in the USA, Canada, Latin America, the Caribbean, Europe, Asia and Africa, and rough dates and where to contact for details. I liked the outlines and recommend it to any world traveler, or just stay at home in the USA or Canada; there's plenty to do. You won't be bored!46 of 49 people found the following review helpful. Not For the Faint of Heart...By WIAPilot"100 Things to do Before You Die: Travel Events You Just Can't Miss" by Dave Freeman and Neil Teplica is a travel book for those who like adventure, "living on the edge," and somewhat of an avante garde approach to life. It is NOT for the "faint of heart" or most senior citizens (although it depends on the seniors).100 Things provides information on such festivals and events as: Academy Awards Ceremony (which is REALLY difficult to get into); World Championship Punkin' Chunkin' , North American Rainbow Gathering, Mardi Gras, Custer's Last Stand Reenactment, Testicle Festival, Roswell UFO Encounter, etc. As you can tell these events CAN be pretty bizarre (but never dull).The book's events are divided by both country and, in the back, by month, which is helpful.Unfortunately, the book only lists their own "whatsgoingon.com" website as internet info on the events. This would have been great, but it hasn't been in service lately. This glitch may be temporary, or the website may no longer cease to exist - but I would make sure that the website was up and running before I purchased the book.33 of 35 people found the following review helpful. 2 down, 98 more to go!By LAOLove this book! Very interesting and funny...and it makes me realize how much there is to see and do that isn't for the traditional tourist or found in the traditional guidebook. I recommend this to anyone who's a fan of the unique and off-beat. I've also become addicted to their website, whatsgoingon.com, for a daily dose of this stuff.

100 Things to Do Before You Die highlights the wildest and most exciting events on the planet. The authors profile the 100 best happenings, gatherings, festivals, and events from all over the globe, providing photographs and detailed reports from each scene.

From Library Journal"This life is a short journey," Freeman and Teplica observe in this unusual travel guide. "How can you make sure you fill it with the most fun and that you visit all the coolest places on earth before you pack those bags for the very last time?" Then these authors--both new media travel entrepreneurs--give suggestions for how to do so, in a modest listing of 100 of the world's wondrous events. Ranging from the participatory to the sedate, their list includes the Iditarod Sled Dog Race in Alaska; the Pageant of the Masters in Southern California; Mardi Gras in New Orleans; the World Cow Chip Throwing Championship in Beaver, Oklahoma; Carnival in Brazil; Bastille Day and the Cannes Film Festival in France; Oktoberfest in Germany; the Running of the Bulls in Spain; Yom Kippur at Israel's Western Wall; the Pushkar Camel Fair in India; the Sapporo Snow Festival in Japan; and Australia's Nude Night Surfing Contest. For each event they provide detailed explanations and specifics on how to get there, where to stay, what to eat, and how to find out more on the web. Recommended for large public libraries and libraries with extensive travel collections.-Thomas K. Fry, Univ. of Denver Lib. Copyright 2000 Reed Business Information, Inc. 100 Things to Do Before You Die recommends a lively mix of standard and off-the-wall enticements.
