Karen S. Ivers, Ann E. Barron : Multimedia Projects in Education: Designing, Producing, and Assessing, 4th Edition before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Multimedia Projects in Education: Designing, Producing, and Assessing, 4th Edition:

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Book missing pagesBy Leticia ColonI had no problems with my purchase until, I was assigned to read chapter 7. While reading from one page to the next, I noticed that the text did not match up, on the left I had page 134 and on the right I had page 167. The rest of the chapter (7), about 30 pages, was not included. This was beyond frustrating to say the least.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Missing pages!!By WafflzMy copy is missing pages 135-166. This is a text book for my grad program. I'm sure the content would be helpful to my project if it was... You know... In the book!0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Interesting insights for Powerpoint and School MultimediaBy TechjmiThe book came exactly as described.... The content gave me some new insights but the bottom line is it was a grad school required text and that's all that counts I suppose.

This practical and easy-to-use resource will help teachers and library media specialists effectively integrate multimedia projects into their curriculum. Includes 40 percent new material and updates to all of the previous information An original model (DDD-E) for planning, producing, and assessing multimedia projects More than 45 blackline masters to support instruction Multiple figures and tables for clarity and as examples New laptop and online project ideas Assessment rubrics A glossary of key terms and numerous references and resources

"Enhanced with figures and graphs, this valuable guide could easily have been entitled 'Everything You Wanted to Know About Multimedia and Were Afraid to Ask.' Highly recommended." - Appraisals
