By Amy H. I bought this book for a business library course. After reading the whole textbook, I felt I had a much better grasp on what resources are available online for business librarians or anyone wanting to know more about the business library world. The textbook was very well organized, and the authors were very detailed about subjects such as company information, marketing, industry information, statistics, accounting, and stocks. I highlighted much of the textbook just because the information was so useful to me. As someone who works in a public library setting, I never know when I will get an involved business question, and this book very much prepared me for that. I plan to keep this right next to me at work to grab when I need business resource information. I would highly recommend this for someone pursuing a MLIS with a concentration in business.

By Audrey McGrath I am using textbooks for school. is the single best way to get affordable textbooks. I graduate May 2016. Yes!!!

Strauss's latest edition retains its place as an essential text for library students; an indispensable guide for practitioners in public, academic, and special libraries who deal with business inquiries; and a resource for entrepreneurs and business professionals.

"A remarkable work that should be kept handy near any public, corporate, or academic reference desk." - Reference User Services Quarterly
"This is a must-have reference for business information for all libraries and an excellent resource for students as well as business professionals." - ARBA
"As in previous volumes, the text is very readable, and the authors provide ample illustrations. This logically organized and easy-to-use volume is also relatively inexpensive. Still the best guide available for general business reference, this revised handbook belongs in the reference collection of every academic library as a replacement for the earlier edition. It is also inexpensive enough that most business librarians will want an additional desk copy. Summing Up: Highly recommended." - Choice
