Famines, Poverty, Women, Education.....By Erika StephensA bit repetitive as it has three books covering some of the same material, though this helps in a complex field. The causes of famines and undernourishment, what works and what doesn't to help with these issues. Did you know that the best way to deal with a high birth rate is to educate women? I didn'tThis Nobel-prize winning economist and his coworkers have an enormous range South Asia Southeast Asia Africa (less on Latin America) violence; need a country have a high GNP to educate its people? ; how and where countries have a "missing number of women....How can one summarize this? Additionally it is very well-written and very lucid.

The Sen and Drze omnibus comprises three outstanding works by two of the world's finest economists. The volume is a trilogy on the causes of hunger, the role public action can play in its alleviation, and the Indian experience in this context. Together the three works provide a comprehensive theoretical and empirical analysis of relevant developmental issues.
