access to information:

This book focuses on one specific area of the library profession, organization of knowledge known as cataloguing. The book examines and provides practical guidance of experiences and problems faced by cataloguers from the University of Malawi Libraries and the Malawi National Library Service, in their daily work. This is an invaluable guide for library practitioners as well as trainers of librarians. The book is based on a study which investigated the use of cataloguing tools and resources in both UNIMA and MNLS in providing access to information.
